Raising a child with special needs is much like riding a roller coaster. As parents, we have our low times, but we have our good times, too. Though special events need to be celebrated, enjoyed and shared with others, low times need to be shared as well. Those “low times” are when we need understanding and support the most.

DAD ROCKS is a support group established for fathers who have children with Special Needs. Our group is lead by parents and attended by parents. We recognize that our children may have different needs and go through different stages as they are growing. As parents, however, we all have the same needs—a listening ear, and a circle of friends who understand and can relate to our anxieties and day-to-day stresses. The goal of DAD ROCKS is to help you on your journey with your special needs child and young adult. So come and join us. We welcome everyone, no matter how mild or severe your need may seem.
